

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

The village blacksmith

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, George T. Andrew, Edmund Henry Garrett, Frank Thayer Merrill, Charles Copeland, Jessie Curtis Shepherd, Elizabeth S. Tucker, ...

NBI
LONGFELLOW

Mrs. E. N. Benham

Dec 25 90.

N.

NB1

THIS EDITION OF THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH IS PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH MESSRS. HOUGH ON, MIFFLIN & CO., THE AUTHORIZED PUBLISHERS OF MR. LONGFELLOW'S WORKS.

“The smith, a mighty man is he.”

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

BY

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW

ILLUSTRATED

NEW YORK
E. P. DUTTON AND COMPANY
31 WEST 23D STREET
1890

Copyright, 1885,
BY E. P. DUTTON AND COMPANY.

Press of J. J. Little & Co.
Astor Place, New York.

INTRODUCTION

TRUE poet is also true priest. He takes of earth's commonest things, the plain bread and water of every-day toil and trial, and, having laid loving, reverent hands upon them, he delivers them unto us enriched with a new grace, a diviner virtue. It is the sacrament of thought.

Half a century ago—and until within a few years—a blacksmith's shop, of the old New England village type, stood in Brattle street, Cambridge, not far from Longfellow's home. Hundreds of passers-by glanced at the low roof, the overhanging boughs, the grimy smith at his forge, the gazing children at the door, and went their way without giving them a second thought. Not so the poet. Where others saw but the veriest commonplace he discovered fit material for tuneful song,—love, sorrow, the patience of hope, the strength of duty, all the beauty and tragedy of earnest human living. And though smith and smithy, the sheltering tree, the loitering children, poet and passers-by, alike are gone, the song lives on. Its pictures fade not; its lessons grow not old; it will but become the more precious as the times and customs which it commemorates slide farther back into the past, and differ more widely from those of to-day.

INTRODUCTION.

W. M. L. J.

ILLUSTRATIONS

DRAWN AND ENGRAVED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF GEORGE T. ANDREW.

ARTISTS.

EDMUND H. GARRETT,

FRANK T. MERRILL,

CHAS. COPELAND,

JESSIE CURTIS SHEPHERD,

MISS E. S. TUCKER,

F. B. SCHELL.

UNDER a spreading chestnut tree
The village smithy stands;
The smith, a mighty man is he,
With large and sinewy hands;
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands.

His hair is crisp, and black, and long,
His face is like the tan;
His brow is wet with honest sweat,
He earns whate'er he can,
And looks the whole world in the face,
For he owes not any man.

Week in, week out, from morn till night
You can hear his bellows blow;
You can hear him swing his heavy sledge,

21996B

With measured beat and slow,
Like a sexton ringing the village bell,
When the evening sun is low.

And children coming home from school
Look in at the open door;
They love to see the flaming forge,
And hear the bellows roar,
And catch the burning sparks that fly
Like chaff from a threshing floor.

He goes on Sunday to the church,

And sits among his boys;
He hears the parson pray and preach,

He hears his daughter's voice,
Singing in the village choir,
And it makes his heart rejoice.

It sounds to him like her mother's voice,
Singing in Paradise!

He needs must think of her once more,
How in the grave she lies;
And with his hard, rough hand he wipes
A tear out of his eyes.

Toiling, — rejoicing, — sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes ;
Each morning sees some task begin,
Each evening sees it close ;
Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose.

Thanks, thanks to thee, my worthy friend,
For the lesson thou hast taught!
Thus at the flaming forge of life
Our fortunes must be wrought;
Thus on its sounding anvil shaped
Each burning deed and thought!

